from the executive director

Help us celebrate and support Westerly Library & Wilcox Park and all libraries across the country!

In just a few short weeks we will be celebrating National Library Week. This year National Library Week runs from April 6 to 12. During this week we observe the Right to Read Day on April 7, National Library Workers Day on April 8, National Library Outreach Day on April 9, and Take Action for Libraries Day on April 10. April is also School Library Month, a time to celebrate the essential role that strong school libraries play in transforming learning.

The right or freedom to read is essential in a democratic society. And this freedom has been under attack for years but the censorship isn't just on books. Library workers, educators, and community members are being targeted and made fearful to buy books, to check out books, to teach a diversity of viewpoints, and to even report censorship.

This is why there is a Bill in both the RI House and Senate to protect library workers and educators and your right to read whatever you choose. The Rhode Island Freedom to Read Act (S0238, H5726) protects Rhode Islanders' fundamental American rights to free speech, free inquiry and the right to form and express our own opinions, as laid out by the First Amendment and the Rhode Island Constitution.

Libraries are also facing attacks at the national level. Recently, there was an Executive Order issued in March intended to defund seven agencies to the greatest extent of the law including Institute of Museum and Library Services (IMLS). State officials, librarians, and library supporters are already working to fight this. Cuts to funding could impact:

- Summer reading programs for children, teens and adults
- Statewide reading programs such as Kids Reading Across Rhode Island and RI Children's Book Award
- Subgrants to libraries to develop programs and services, including grants for digitization (including the majority of digitization of The Westerly Sun), services for veterans and differently abled individuals, social services, and learning programs
- Resource sharing including AskRI and interlibrary loan

The loss of federal support for library services could devastate libraries. Please show your support of libraries. The biggest thing you could do to show your support is to use your library. Using the library shows that people want and need their libraries. You can also let your elected officials know about your support of libraries and all they do for you and your community.

And don't forget to join us during National Library Week! We have great things planned that you won't want to miss!

Warmly,

Brigitte S. Hopkins
Executive Director

The Westerly Sun: Historical Access

If you happen upon the August 15, 1894 edition of The Westerly Sun, you can read all about the opening of the “Memorial building”, also known as Westerly Library! Built as a Civil War memorial, the paper states the building will “stand as a constant reminder of the sacrifice made by Westerly men for their country.” You can see the original floor plan, read about the borrowing rules, learn about Stephen Wilcox, and much more. In fact, there was a gymnasium and bowling alley that was open every day except Sundays!

Guess what? You can do all this from the comfort of your home! We are working toward digitizing old issues of The Westerly Sun. Currently; you can access the 1893-1950 issues of the Westerly Sun through our website. You can navigate to it via the Local History page or by clicking here. When you have a chance, browse around because you may discover some really fascinating articles!

Mr. Stephen Wilcox.
Mr. Stephen Wilcox, to whose generosity and public spirit Westerly is chiefly indebted for the beautiful Memorial building which has been dedicated today, was a native of this town, having been born Feb. 12, 1830, a son of Stephen Wilcox, Jr., and Sophia Vose. His early life, until 1866, was passed in this town. Then he removed to Provi-

The Serviceberry Book Club with the Westerly Land Trust • Wednesday, April 23rd • 10 am-1 pm • Wahaneeta Preserve

We are delighted to once again be teaming with the Westerly Land Trust for a book discussion as part of Earth Day celebrations. On Wednesday, April 23rd at 10am we will meet at the Wahaneeta Preserve cabin followed by a hike through the woods of Wahaneeta Preserve. We will be discussing The Serviceberry: Abundance and Reciprocity in the Natural World by Robin Wall Kimmerer.

This book examines the connections between indigenous knowledge, ecology, and the natural world. The author explores lessons we can learn from plants and ecosystems, focusing on themes of reciprocity, healing, and the relationship between humans and nature. There is a focus on the idea of a gift economy, using the serviceberry as an example for how nature thrives through sharing. She invites readers to reimagine our relationship with the earth, embracing a worldview rooted in gratitude, abundance, and the principles of a ‘gift economy’. Please note that registration is required, and spots are limited. You can register by clicking on the Serviceberry Book Club. If you do not have a copy of “The Serviceberry,” limited copies are available in the Reference Department on the second floor of the library.

This postcard image, taken between 1894 and 1913, shows the older post office that was next to the library before the current one was built. You can see the library building on the right, and on the left, what became the public parking lot downtown.

This month we have been busy in Local History & Special Collections! We have in our vault many of the papers of Margaret Wise Brown, well-known author of children’s books such as Goodnight Moon and The Runaway Bunny. We have been digitizing portions of her collection for a Parisian student writing a dissertation on Margaret and her work. Additionally, we have a request this month for information on the early schools and school houses of Westerly, for a grad student working on a thesis at the Boston Architectural School.

Brianna was recognized for taking time to familiarize a new staff member within the department and patiently answering all related questions. She was also recognized for doing a wonderful job of organizing "hold" items and creating an outstanding Valentine's Day display.

service highlight

community spotlight

Libraries across the country will celebrate National Library Week from April 6th to 12th to reflect upon the essential services public libraries offer and the reasons people are “Drawn to the Library”. While there are many reasons to be initially drawn to Westerly Library & Wilcox Park, many in the community are drawn to stay and become an active community member. Throughout each month, neighbors meet at the library to work on craft projects, discuss their favorite books, share a meal made from new recipes, play chess, and celebrate their shared interests. Clubs and meet-ups allow for those who walk into the library to be more than just library card holders, but community members and friends.

There is a club for everyone at Westerly Library & Wilcox Park. Please join us on April 12th from 10am-12pm for the Library Club Meet & Greet to say hello to active community members and learn about our many regular clubs and meet ups!

This April, Westerly Library & Wilcox Park will also celebrate Volunteer Appreciation Week from the 20th through the 26th. In the last year, 180 individuals have volunteered their time and skills throughout the library and across the park to help with our day-to-day operations. Our volunteers’ contributions are substantial and help us to fulfill our mission as an organization. On behalf of the staff at Westerly Library & Wilcox Park, thank you to our volunteers!
